

You're a UK Grad ... right? You know a lot about Kentucky ... right?

Sure, we all think we know a lot about our great Commonwealth...about the brave Daniel Boone and James Harrod who established early forts. But do you know who came before them? The answer to this and thousands of other questions about Kentucky's past and present are within the covers of these 700 plus pages of fascinating facts and data.

Whether you are a trivia fanatic, history buff or just plain curious about Kentucky's historical facts, business and economy, the arts, sports, recreation, family trends, Clark's Kentucky Almanac will hold you spellbound for hours.

Now, after a 150 year absence, Clark's Kentucky Almanac revives a tradition begun in 1788 by John Bradford, a Lexingtonian from Virginia turned printer and publisher of the first "Kentucky Almanac".

Clark's Kentucky Almanac and Book of Facts 2006. Your link to the past—your portal to the future.
